FÁILTE GO HÉIRINN – WELCOME TO IRELAND!

It is with great joy and pride that we welcome you to Ireland, to Dublin, and to our conference venue, University College Dublin's Sutherland School of Law.

We are delighted to host ERNOP's 10th biennial conference. Whether you've attended prior gatherings, from Amsterdam in 2008 to Basel in 2019, or Dublin is your first experience of this community of scholars and practitioners, your presence is valued and deeply appreciated.

This is the first time ERNOP has gathered in Ireland. A country with a strong tradition of charitable giving and significant philanthropic activity, but without – as yet – an academic Centre on Philanthropic Studies. We hope this conference will contribute to advancing the establishment of such a centre, adding to the development of philanthropy in Ireland.

We are meeting in the magnificent city of Dublin – famously welcoming, and endowed with many notable visitor attractions, including the Book of Kells and Dublin Castle where we will hold a memorable ERNOP Gala Reception.

We have greatly enjoyed preparing for this conference, we thank you for coming and, in the opening words of the Irish blessing: May the road rise up to meet you, and may the wind be always at your back.

The Dublin ERNOP Host Committee
*Oonagh Breen (Chair), Beth Breeze,
Gemma Donnelly-Cox, Maria Gallo,
Charlie Lamson and Eilis Murray.*

Dear ERNOP Friends,

On behalf of the Board of the European Research Network on Philanthropy we welcome you in Dublin at the 10th international conference of ERNOP. A special one. It is great that we now may present our research “live” and discuss and meet “in person”. A long time we are worrying if the conference could take place. We had many and continuous deliberations about the ultimate decision: do we make or not? We are extremely grateful to the hosting Dublin committee for the perfect organization in so uncertain times.

The pandemic has – and will cause – serious social, economic and political problems. At the same time covid has also showed and proved empirically the role and value of philanthropy for communities and neighborhoods to survive in times of crisis. We as researchers may frame philanthropy in this way: As social arrangement, diverse in its values, standards and rules with regard to philanthropic behavior, but a universal human impulse.

We are confident that this conference – which is being hosted in Ireland for the first time – will contribute to the universal understanding of philanthropy and civic commitment. This conference would not have been possible without the support of the many, many, supporting organisations, and I would like to acknowledge them here.

I wish all of you a fruitful, challenging and successful conference.

Theo Schuyt (ERNOP president)

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS I

Beth Breeze

Beth Breeze is Director of the Centre for Philanthropy at the University of Kent, which she co-founded in 2008. Beth began her career as a fundraiser for a youth homelessness charity, and spent a decade working in a variety of fundraising, research and charity management roles, including as deputy director at the Institute for Philanthropy.

Beth has written and edited several prize winning books. She recently published 'In defence of philanthropy' in which she explores the reputation of philanthropy in contemporary society and tackles main critiques levelled at philanthropy.

Beth has served as trustee for the Cardinal Hume Centre for young homeless people, as a commissioner on the Commission for the Donor Experience, as publications editor of Philanthropy UK, as a member of the President's advisory council at NCV0; as a member of the Advisory Group of the Charity Tax Commission; member of the editorial board of Non-profit and Voluntary Sector Quarterly and is a member of the Women's Philanthropy Institute Research Committee, Lilly School of Philanthropy, Indiana University, USA.

Madeleine Clarke

Madeleine Clarke is the founder and Executive Director of Genio which is a European organisation based in Ireland working with philanthropy and the public sector at national and EU levels. In Ireland Genio works collaboratively to reform social service systems to re-configure resources towards cost-effective supports for people to live self-determined lives as valued and participating members of society. Genio combines fund-management, capacity-building, action research and impact-measurement to effect change in a citizen-centred, cost-effective direction. To date, Genio has worked in mental health, disability, homelessness, dementia, drug addiction and persons seeking international protection. Within Genio, Madeleine leads the European Social Catalyst Fund established and co-funded by the European Union's Horizon 2020 Research and Innovation Programme, Genio, the Robert Bosch Stiftung and the King Baudouin Foundation. The European Social Catalyst Fund is providing financial and capacity-building support to develop plans to scale proven social service innovations within and across European Union Member States.

Prior to establishing Genio Madeleine has held a number of leadership roles as a professional psychologist, manager and consultant to philanthropic, government and social service providing organisations. She was Chair of the European Venture Philanthropy Association (where she is currently a Board Director) which consists of 320 organisations interested in, or practising, venture philanthropy and social investment across 29 countries. She was a Board Director of Social Venture Partners International and was the inaugural chair of the Children's Rights Alliance in Ireland. Madeleine is an experienced and strategic leader, expert in complex systems change and has been dedicated throughout her 40 year career to bringing about sustainable improvements in the lives of people who are vulnerable and disadvantaged. She holds an M.A. psychology, University College Dublin and MSc., University of Wales.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS II

Rhodri Davies

Rhodri Davies is a widely-respected expert and commentator on philanthropy and civil society issues. He is the author of Public Good by Private Means: How philanthropy shapes Britain, which traces the history of philanthropy in Britain and what it tells us about the modern context. He is currently in the process of establishing (with the support of the Pears Foundation) a new entity that will focus on developing better understanding of and engagement with philanthropy, and also works in-house at the Pears Foundation to help them and their partner organisations think through philanthropy issues. Rhodri also works part-time as a Pears Fellow in the Centre for Philanthropy at the University of Kent. He was formerly Head of Policy at Charities Aid Foundation (CAF), and established and led Giving Thought – CAF’s think tank focussing on current and future issues affecting philanthropy and civil society. Rhodri created and hosted CAF’s popular bi-weekly Giving Thought podcast -which ran for over 100 episodes between 2017 and 2020. He has researched, written and presented on a wide range of topics – from charity taxation to the civil society applications of cutting-edge technologies such as artificial intelligence.

Rhodri graduated from the University of Oxford with a first-class degree in Mathematics and Philosophy and embarked upon an academic career before migrating into public policy work, where he has spent over a decade specialising in the policy aspects of philanthropy and charitable giving. He is involved with a number of external projects and steering groups, including the World Economic Forum Technology and Social Justice Initiative, The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation’s Better Giving Studio and the Wellcome Trust-funded Border Crossings project (which is exploring the relationship between voluntary action and the NHS since 1948).

Elizabeth McKeon

Liz McKeon is Head of Climate Action at the IKEA Foundation, the philanthropic arm of INGKA Foundation, the owner of the IKEA Group of companies. She joined the foundation in 2014, taking part in the extraordinary growth and maturation of one Europe’s largest private philanthropies. She currently heads a team working to secure the 1.5°C degree ambition of the Paris Agreement by enacting systemic shifts in the real economy and the finance sector.

For several decades, Liz has worked in global development, ever more convinced that structural injustice inhibits equality and human progress. Her views began taking root on a teaching assignment in apartheid-era South Africa, and have continued through her career at organizations including the Ford Foundation, the US Agency for International Development (USAID), the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, and the International Research and Exchanges Board (IREX).

Liz is Chair of the Board of Alliance Publishing Trust, publishers of Alliance Magazine, the leading magazine for philanthropy and social investment worldwide. She is a firm believer that philanthropies operate at their highest level when they commit to regular knowledge sharing and candid dialogue. She holds an M.P.P. from Harvard’s Kennedy School of Government, and a B.S. in Russian from Georgetown University. Liz is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and recently concluded a seven year engagement as a founding board member of /TheRules (www.therules.org).

Prof. Dr. Oonagh Breen (UCD School of Law)

Keynote: In defense of philanthropy

By Dr. Beth Breeze (Centre for Philanthropy at the University of Kent)

Moderated by Laetitia Gill (Geneva Centre for Philanthropy)

Criticising philanthropy has become increasingly prevalent, especially in relation to private giving by the biggest donors. Philanthropy is now widely understood as inherently problematic, depicted as at best a self-promoting ruse, and at worst an activity that causes more harm than good. Concerns about philanthropy are not new: questions have long been raised about donor motivation, as well as the propriety and implications of private giving in the public sphere. In this keynote, Beth Breeze argues that the current wave of pessimism about the role and potential of philanthropy is a reactionary and damaging development that overstates the nature of the 'threat' and understates both the positive benefits of private giving, and evident attempts to improve its practice and impact.

PANEL SESSION 2-DROOM: L013*Fundraising as a vehicle aimed to promote and support development for nonprofit organizations. How to make better use of the work of academia to improve practice?Moderated by Simona Biancu, European Fundraising Association (EFA)Panel participants: Paul Smeets (Maastricht University), Malike Ouacha (Rotterdam School of Management) & Arthur Gautier (ESSEC Business School)

Academic research on behavior, together with the way people consider a “gift” as a way to create links with other people, identifies possible ways to create a space for fundraising in our times.

In this era characterized by many changes and challenges, a link between those who investigate and research how people perceive certain issues and those who encourage people to give for their causes, seems more needed than ever to find a suitable way to define a new perimeter for fundraising in the forthcoming years.

In this panel, moderated by Simona Biancu from the European Fundraising Association, academia and practitioners will discuss these issues by sharing their perspectives and present possible ways to cooperate and advance research on fundraising as a complex, strategic vehicle to make development of nonprofit organizations tangible.

14.45 – 15.15 Coffee break(Gardiner Atrium)

15.15 – 16.30 PARALLEL SESSIONS 3

PANEL SESSION 3-DROOM: L248*Generosity, Gifting and Philanthropy in Theory and Practice:
Current Research from ISTR Members

Panel participants: Lesley Alborough (Nottingham Trent University), Susan Appe (Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy, University at Albany), David A. Campbell (Binghamton University) and Steven Rathgeb Smith (American Political Science Association and Georgetown University)

This colloquium presents current, ongoing research about generosity, gifting and philanthropic theory and practice. It covers multiple empirical settings and a diversity of ideas including the debates about the role of philanthropy, philanthropic responses to COVID-19, emerging philanthropists in cross-border scenarios, and how philanthropy and its leaders reckon with the major social problems of our times. It highlights members from the International Society for Third-Sector Research who are active researchers in the field of philanthropy.

PANEL SESSION 3-EROOM: L013*'Being bold': What can philanthropy do differently to tackle climate change?

Moderated by Max von Abendorth, Dafne/Philanthropy Coalition for Climate

Panel Participants: Anne Monier (ESSEC Business School), Michele Betsill (University of Copenhagen), Liz McKeon (IKEA Foundation), & James Magowan (European Community Foundation Initiative)

The next decade is critical for ensuring that we do not surpass a series of planetary tipping points and avoid non-linear and irreversible changes to life on Earth as we know it. This is an enormous challenge which requires a new and collaborative response from all segments of society. As new coalitions for climate emerge at the national, European and international level, the ERNOP Conference 2021 is a great opportunity to analyse the new directions climate philanthropy is taking and how research is developing on the topic.

This panel will focus on two key questions surrounding philanthropy's role in tackling the climate crisis. First, what is the specific role of the philanthropic sector in the map of different actors engaged in climate action? And second, with only 2% of philanthropic giving dedicated to climate, what can philanthropy do differently from what it has done so far?

Facing these questions, how can research help? It is crucial to develop research on climate philanthropy and, in particular, in social sciences. Although scholarship is exponentially growing on climate, social sciences researchers are slower at taking an interest in these questions. This is all the more important as climate change has and will continue to have enormous consequences on human lives – not only on the planet.

18.30 – 21.00 ERNOP GALA RECEPTION(Dublin Castle)

Hosted and keynote address by Minister Joe O'Brien, Minister of State for Community Development and Charities at the Department of Rural and Community Development.

09.00 – 10.15 PARALLEL SESSIONS 4*SESSION 4-A*ROOM: L244*Managing roles and strategiesModerated by Marta Rey-GarciaCommunity Foundations in Serbia: The Potential for Community Leaderships

Bojana Radovanovic (University of Belgrade) & Jelena Vasiljevic

The Organizational Experience of RAGE Philanthropy

Melanie Sidwell (University of Colorado Boulder), Amy Volda (University of Colorado Boulder) & Sarah Nathan (Indiana University)

PANEL SESSION 4-CROOM: L013*Rethinking Young People's Relationship With PhilanthropyModerated by Isaac Jones (First Give)*

Panel participants: Alison Body (University of Kent), Callum Pethick (First Give), Amelia Ireland (First Give)

In this panel we present a range of voices, including young people, practitioner and academic, to critically explore young people's relationship with philanthropy. The panel will move beyond ideas of young people simply as beneficiaries of philanthropy, considering their role as enactors of social change in their own right. We will question ideas of power, voice and representation in traditional philanthropic decision-making and explore more meaningful, equitable and progressive approaches to engaging children and young people in philanthropy.

SESSION 4-DROOM: L247*Governance and management of foundationsModerated by Tobias JungResponding to a novel disaster: Exploring the practices of a new national disaster and emergency charity.

Lesley Alborough (Nottingham Trent University) & Salley Andrews (Nottingham Trent University)

10.15 – 10.45 Coffee break(Gardiner Atrium)10.45 – 12.10 PLENARY SESSION(L023, The A&L Goodbody Theatre)

This panel explores the extent to which the concepts of charitable giving and philanthropic giving are intertwined or diverge and how the tensions that exist between government funding and private philanthropic giving can be navigated. It invites the panellists to consider the respective limitations and complementarity of these funding streams. Where is there best scope for leveraging philanthropic funding? What role can research play in bridging the inevitable gaps?

Barriers to cross-border philanthropy and how to overcome them*Moderated by Anne-Laure Paquot (Transnational Giving Europe)*

Panel participants: Wino van Veen (VU Amsterdam), Katerina Ronovska (Masaryk University), Giedre Liedeikyte-Huber (University of Geneva) & Hanna Surmatz (Philanthropy Advocacy by Dafne and EFC)

Philanthropy and philanthropic organisations are a critical part of our democratic and pluralistic societies and key actors in moving several EU policy agendas' forward for the public good. Of concern is however that regulation as well as the wider political climate are increasingly challenging civil society and philanthropic actors' space and that the sector still does not fully benefit from the Single Market and basic freedoms. A new analysis, initiated by the Philanthropy Advocacy initiative by DAFNE and EFC, confirmed that barriers to cross-border work remain an issue. However, two recent studies commissioned by the European Parliament provide some new ideas how to overcome the barriers to cross-border philanthropy on the European level. In this panel we will discuss potential solutions to help overcome legal, tax and administrative barriers surfaced and confirmed by the recent study.

13.30 – 14.30 Farewell lunch

ABOUT THE EUROPEAN RESEARCH NETWORK ON PHILANTHROPY

The European Research Network on Philanthropy (ERNOP) is an association that was founded in January 2008 by collaborating philanthropy researchers in Europe. Our mission is to advance, coordinate and promote excellence in philanthropic research in Europe. We aim to be an international and interdisciplinary network open to all researchers studying philanthropy. To date, around 250 members from almost 30 (mostly) European countries have joined ERNOP. ERNOP and its members work closely with other academic research networks that address related fields such as ISTR, ARNOVA and EMES. Also, ERNOP has developed a good relationship with European networks of philanthropy professionals such as DAFNE, EFC, EVPA and EFA.

ERNOP members study philanthropy, which is understood as private, mainly voluntary, contributions to public causes. However, we acknowledge that philanthropy has different meanings across Europe because of the large variations in the historical, social and legal background of philanthropy. ERNOP perceives all these different perspectives as being a strength, and aims to include them all in the study of philanthropy. ERNOP members actively publish their research in a wide range of mono- and interdisciplinary scientific journals, from economic journals to marketing, social policy and historical journals. We are proud of the fact that ERNOP members are editors of the four main specialised philanthropy journals (NVSQ, Voluntas, JPM and VSR).

In order to further advance philanthropic research in Europe, ERNOP members from different countries and scientific disciplines have collaborated on numerous research projects and grant proposals, each bringing their own unique qualities and perspectives to the projects. New members are cordially invited to join collaborative proposals.

Since its inception in 2008, ERNOP has organised a biennial conference in a European city. At this conference, researchers studying philanthropy present their state-of-art research, exchange ideas and meet colleagues. The conference aims to contribute to the creation of a European philanthropy researcher identity. ERNOP is proud that this conference is considered to be the leading conference on European philanthropy research. ERNOP aims to represent the study of philanthropy in Europe and to influence policy-making at a national and European level. Knowledge is of utmost importance for policy-making and this is no different for philanthropy. As there is no structural or comparable information about philanthropy between European countries, ERNOP aims to put philanthropy research on the philanthropy agenda of national and European policymakers.
