

Publication process

ERNOP Research Notes

Get access to readable and relevant summaries of academic publications on philanthropy. Showcase your expertise and grow your knowledge by signing up for the ERNOP Research Note database of practitioner experts.

Sign up here: https://fd20.formdesk.com/vuamsterdam/ResearchNotes_ExpertDatabase

Practitioner expert database

By signing up for the database, you can list your primary expertise and/or interest.

Search and Match

After entering the practitioner expert database, we will match your interest and expertise with a relevant academic publication.

Confirmation of practitioner experts

After we have made a match, we will approach you and ask if you are available to create the research note using the format that ERNOP has developed.

Confirmation of original author

We will contact the original leading author of the publication to confirm that he/she is interested in having the original publication made available as ERNOP Research Note and that he/she is willing to share key figures (if available) that can be used in the Research Note.

Connect

We will match the practitioner expert and original author by exchanging email addresses. Now the creation of your Research Note can formally start.

First draft

After the connection, you will be asked to deliver the draft of the Research Note within 6 weeks, but sooner is also fine.

Feedback

The first round of feedback will be provided within one week by ERNOP. We will only check if you applied the ERNOP Research Notes format.

Second draft

We will ask you to return a second draft of the research note one week later

Confirmation of original author

We will connect with the original authors again and ask for their feedback or approval and integrate this.

Finalisation and publishing

After approval by the original author(s), ERNOP will publish the research note on its webpages. Congratulations!