

Call for Contributions

Philanthropy PhD Perspectives: From Theory to Impact

The future of our field of research is in the hands of our students. Showcase your research with ERNOP! Are you a PhD student conducting research in the field of philanthropy or have you recently obtained your PhD? Do you want to increase the visibility of your work and connect with a broad audience interested in European research on philanthropy? ERNOP invites you to contribute to our blog series and share your insights with the academic community and beyond!

Benefits of Contributing:

- Visibility: ERNOP aims to amplify the work of PhD students by showcasing their research to a diverse audience. Your contribution will help elevate your profile within the academic research community and beyond.
- Networking Opportunities: By sharing your research on our platform, you'll have the chance to connect with fellow researchers, practitioners, and stakeholders in the field of philanthropy. This network can prove invaluable both during and after your PhD journey.
- Recognition and Celebration: We value the hard work and dedication of PhD students, and our blog series is a platform to celebrate your achievements. By sharing your research journey, you can inspire and encourage others!

Submission Guidelines:

- Word Count: Posts should be around 750 words.
- Content: Include the focus (topic and research question) of your PhD, your academic background, the methodologies used or planned, and some of the challenges you've faced during your PhD journey.
- Share the relevance of working together with colleagues. Would be great if you could refer to the relevance of ERNOP or ERNOP members!
- Significance of the Work: Most importantly, explain why someone should care about your research and what society/philanthropy stands to gain when your PhD is completed.
- Short Bio: Don't forget to include a short bio (50 words) along with a picture of yourself.

Don't miss this opportunity to showcase your research and contribute to the advancement of knowledge in philanthropy. We look forward to receiving your contributions!

Deadline: No deadline 😊. But reach out and we will schedule a deadline for you!
